Creekmore Holiday Express
A New Tradition is Born

By Charles Raney, Director of Parks and Recreation

Starting a new tradition in Fort Smith for the holiday season, the parks and recreation staff, commission and friends of the park initiated the "Creekmore Holiday Express". From December 4 through December 23, 2000, the train ran in Creekmore Park every night except Sundays. Mother Nature was not kind to Fort Smith in December 2000 and of the three weeks scheduled, one week had to be canceled. Still, 8,827 young and old alike bundled up and the die-hard train riders came to Creekmore Park to ride the train, see the lights of the park and listen to entertainment provided by a different Host each night.

Besides the train ride, there was the Trail of Christmas Trees and the Trolley Bus Tour of Christmas Lights. 28,500 people from Fort Smith and the surrounding communities braved the winter weather to enjoy the new holiday tradition. There were 18 Hosts who volunteered their organization to provide music, hot drink, candy canes, free train tickets and even Santa Claus on some nights. The old saying "build it and they will come" proved to be very valid. The park was decorated throughout and families could stroll through the trail of Christmas trees, ride the train through the tunnel of lights, see winter wonderland, animal kingdom and doves flying through the air.

Adults and kids came wrapped in blankets and dressed so that only a small part of their face could be seen, but come and ride they did. After the train ride, even the small portion of face exposed could not hide the enjoyment of the lights and festivities. The Creekmore Holiday Express quickly became a regional event. Comments were heard that people did not have to drive to other towns to see the lights of Christmas, now they could stay home and even more important, they could get out and see, hear and actually do things in the park.

Even with the bad weather, the Hosts from several churches, several civic groups, Salvation Army, Sunnymeade PTA, Old Fort River Festival, Cancer Support House, Sparkie's Kids and Scottish Club came out to provide entertainment and to make the evening special for those braving the weather. This event should only grow bigger, and with decent weather, those that come to the Creekmore Holiday Express will come from many communities around the state and some adjoining states. Plans are to expand the lights and activities within the park so that the tradition started in 2000 will become a major event each year, and for many years to come memories will be shared by those that made the Creekmore Holiday Express a family tradition.

Diesel Engine

LITTLE STEAM ENGINE TRAIN
“CREEKMORE EXPRESS”

The little steam engine that still runs today in Creekmore Park was built by Mr. Sam Skidmore from Paris, Texas. The train was built and brought to Creekmore Park in the summer of 1949 when the park was initially opened. Mr. Louis Hope, who worked for OG&E at the time, bought the miniature train and ran it as a concessionaire beginning in 1949. Mr. Sam Allen, current resident of Fort Smith, says that he was the first engineer to operate the train in the park.

The steam engine operated for nearly a year until the City of Fort Smith pressured Mr. Hope to sell the train and the city would take over operation. This transition was not a pleasant one, but eventually the city was able to operate the train efficiently and has been doing so ever since.

Mr. Eldon D. Pence, a general agent with the Kansas City Southern Railroad was instrumental in getting the railroad company to send in a crew to lay the nearly 1/2 mile of tracks for the little train. Mr. Sam, as Sam Skidmore was known to most people, sold the steam engine for $5,000. The train in Fort Smith was one of five built by Mr. Sam before he died in 1965. The park steam engine became known as the “Creekmore Express” and is the last of the five trains to be operating as we move into the year 2001.

The Creekmore steam engine was constructed on a scale of two inches to one foot. Originally it cost 10 cents to ride the train, and after 51 years the price to ride is only one quarter, a real bargain today.

A group was formed in 1988 to accept private donations for the renovation of the steam engine. City Park Commissioner Lisa Morris headed the drive to save the train and the drive was a huge success. To ensure the longevity of the steam engine in Creekmore Park, the money raised was also used to build a diesel engine to run daily in the park while saving the steam engine for holidays and special occasions. Mr. Jay Wiechert, owner of Wiechert Manufacturing Company in Fort Smith at the time, agreed to build the diesel engine that runs today. Mr. Wiechert was well known in the business as he built the first “electric chair” for the State of Arkansas.

Lights, Creekmore Holiday Express his year it was not the Grinch who stole Christmas, but Mother Nature, hot on Santa’s trail, who plagued Fort Smith and the surrounding area. In practice for her master production, she blanketed much of Arkansas with an ice/snow storm on Tuesday, December 12, 2000, causing approximately 90,000 Arkansans to lose electric power.\(^1\)

By Saturday, December 17, 2000, approximately 2,000 people in the River Valley were still without power\(^2\) and temperatures dropped very low. In Johnson County a mother, with two of her children, died, after rescuing three of her daughters, in a fire caused by the candles and fireplace which they were using for light and heat.\(^3\)

However, most of the first storm was to the east and south of Fort Smith and there was not much damage in the immediate area with the exception of traffic accidents.

The Times Record warned on Christmas morning that icy roads were likely and quoted Mike Teague of the National Weather Service Office in Tulsa as saying, “It looks extremely messy.”\(^4\)

The article went on to predict that the sleet and freezing rain would start late on Christmas night. This proved to be a false prediction as the icy precipitation began falling Christmas morning and many holiday visitors either had to cut their Christmas visits short or risk being stranded. By eleven a.m., when my husband and I decided that we could not risk staying at my mother’s for Christmas dinner, the roads were a solid sheet of ice. In spite of the efforts of the city crews who began spreading sand and salt on Fort Smith streets, some of the hilly roads on the southside of town were closed on Monday.\(^5\) Airlines began to cancel flights and conditions continued to worsen with the NWS predicting more freezing rain and sleet through Wednesday.

From personal experience, I can tell you that spending all of Christmas night listening to the breaking of limbs and waiting for one to fall on your house is not a fun thing to do. Yet, this was an experience shared by many Fort Smith residents. To top this, one by one, area by area, neighborhood by neighborhood, the lights began to go out as power lines where knocked down by falling limbs, broken under the weight of the ice or power poles split and buckled under the heavy

In spite of the efforts of the city crews who began spreading sand and salt on Fort Smith streets, some of the hilly roads on the southside of town were closed on Monday.\(^5\) Airlines began to cancel flights and conditions continued to worsen with the NWS predicting more freezing rain and sleet through Wednesday.

From personal experience, I can tell you that spending all of Christmas night listening to the breaking of limbs and waiting for one to fall on your house is not a fun thing to do. Yet, this was an experience shared by many Fort Smith residents. To top this, one by one, area by area, neighborhood by neighborhood, the lights began to go out as power lines where knocked down by falling limbs, broken under the weight of the ice or power poles split and buckled under the heavy coat of ice. Not only was the electricity going, but so were the phone lines and cable service and water lines began to freeze and burst without heat. People were suddenly left without all the things we so take for granted -- heat, light and communication -- and many were to remain that way for days and, in some instances, for as much as two weeks.

On Tuesday, December 26, the ice continued to accumulate and conditions continued to worsen even stopping the clock on the Square in Greenwood at 5:50 p.m. More power lines went down and conditions worsened. Emergency shelters began to be set up by the American Red Cross and the Salvation Army to help those who were without heat, food or, in some instances, water.

For the first time in its history, the Fort Smith Times Record failed to publish a daily newspaper on Wednesday, December 27. Publisher Gene Kincy stated that the roads were so icy that they would have had a hard time getting enough employees to the plant to print the paper and that it would have been impossible to deliver it. However, by Thursday the presses were again rolling and the National Weather Service was saying that "the worst is over."

The local newspaper was not the only source of communication that was lost. Many people were without telephone service and not even a cell phone was a sure shot at communicating with the outside world as the cell sites buckled under the ice. Many local radio stations were off the air as their transmission towers either lost power or collapsed in the heavy load of at least three inches of ice. Power was lost to the Sebastian County repeater on Poteau Mountain and this threatened to leave the county without communications for the Sheriff's office, EMS and the rural fire departments as the battery back-up was rapidly depleted. The Fort Smith Area Amateur Radio Club stepped in to help, putting "Hams" in the patrol cars, at the Sheriff's office, in shelters, in fire departments, in EMS stations and in National Guard "Humvees". All in all about 40 "Hams" worked for four to five days. "At around 7:00 p.m. on Wednesday, December 27, the Army National Guard 142nd Field Artillery, 2nd Battalion, started up Poteau Mountain behind a 188th Air National Guard D-9 Caterpillar bulldozer. Communications were handled through "Ham" radio operators. The goal was to deliver a generator to the top of the mountain to run the Sebastian County radio system. Arrangements were made with Southwestern Bell Wireless to take their 35K generator up and assist them in fueling it as needed. In exchange, the Sebastian County system would also be powered by this generator. Nine long hours later, this mission was complete. There were several more trips made in the next few days for maintenance, repairs and refueling of the generator. All trips were made with "Hams" in tow for communication." Luckily, the "Ham" repeater on Cavanaugh Hill continued to function until after the emergency was over when one of the batteries exploded and the antenna came crashing down.

About 62,000 area residents had lost power by December 28, and the electric companies were working long, cold hours and calling in extra crews to try to get power back to their customers. Arkansas Valley Electric Cooperative reported that almost half of their members were without power and OG&E reported 42,000 customers without electricity. By Friday, OG&E still had about 31,500 people in the dark and cold and Arkansas Valley about 6,000. Utility crews continued to work around the clock to restore power.\(^{(11)}\) As late as January 2, 2001, about 15,000 OG&E customers and 1,600 Arkansas Valley members still shivered in the dark.\(^{(12)}\) In fact, it was not until Monday, January 8, 2001, that the power companies could announce that almost all of the area again had electric service.\(^{(13)}\)

The power outages had created markets for many goods. It was difficult to find batteries, kerosene lamps, kerosene or lamp oil, candles, propane or propane heaters. Local television stations were announcing when and where generators could be purchased on their news programs and many people were learning generator terminology. By the same token, other businesses which were without power were forced to close because they could not operate their cash registers and gas stations without electricity could not pump fuel.

On Sunday night, December 31, Mother Nature added insult to injury when she dropped another two inches of snow on the area. The result was another rash of traffic accidents and the cancellation of the annual New Year's Ball Drop. However, the Mayor's New Year's Eve Ball at the Convention Center went ahead as scheduled.\(^{(14)}\)

As electric service returned, people began to miss their televisions. James Anderson, local manager of Cox Cable, estimated that about one-third of their customers were still without service as of Friday, December 29 but every where you looked Cox trucks and contract crews were at work trying to repair the damage.\(^{(15)}\) Meanwhile, some people opted to switch to satellite service. According to Dan Flippen, owner of TSC Digital, they "pretty much lined up" to buy digital television systems.\(^{(16)}\)

Folks also began to look at the physical damage from the storm. Twigs, branches and whole trees littered every yard. In some places whole trees were uprooted and one house on Beverly Lane in Fort Smith was crushed beneath a fallen tree.\(^{(17)}\) There were holes in roofs, burst plumbing and shorts in electrical wiring which caused several fires. Roads, streets and highways were full of potholes from thawing and freezing and the use of plows and graders to attempt to remove the thick ice layer. By Friday, December 29, Arkansas Governor Huckabee declared Sebastian County a disaster area and this was shortly followed by a disaster declaration by President Bill Clinton.\(^{(18)}\)

Local residents began cleaning up the mess and the buzz of chain saws could be heard everywhere. The Fort Smith Regional Landfill did not have the capacity to process the storm damaged tree debris and a local business which owns land along the Arkansas River opened this land for the burning of the brush and a city bulldozer was sent to help control the burning.\(^{(19)}\) City crews began picking up limbs and debris that were piled on the curb and by Thursday, January 4, the City Sanitation Department had resumed regular residential sanitation service.\(^{(20)}\)

The Federal Emergency Management Agency began the process of handling disaster recovery grants and urged residents to save the receipts from their expenses.\(^{(21)}\) By January 8, FEMA officials, accompanied by Representative Asa Hutchinson, visited the area and opened offices to begin to process storm victims' claims.\(^{(22)}\) By January 10, it was reported that some aid checks had already been mailed by FEMA.\(^{(23)}\) Other agencies were also busy, as insurance agents and adjusters, tree specialists, electricians and plumbers suddenly found their services in overwhelming demand. There was, of course, some damage which cannot be repaired in our lifetime, such as that to tall old trees, but the recovery is under way.

The storm brought out the best in people and there are many unsung heroes -- the neighbors who checked on each other; the policemen who went out of their way to check on the welfare of others and do good deeds too numerous to mention; the amateur radio operators who volunteered their time to help; the crews who worked in the cold to restore power, telephone and cable; the Red Cross and Salvation Army and others who took in those of us forced to "refugee". It also forced us to realize how dependent we are on modern technology. A hundred years ago such a storm would have caused much less inconvenience because our grandparents would have not had to worry about downed power lines -- there were none. They would have already been using kerosene lamps, candles and wood burning stoves or fireplaces. They would have simply been a little more confined to home and had to be careful as they went to milk the cow and gather the eggs. Their lives would not have come to a stand still as many of ours did.

Oh how times have changed in the life of the police officer, especially in the life of the African American officer from 1926 to the late 1960's. Black officers were sworn in to obey, protect all citizens, and to keep law and order with limited resources. However, this task did not stop them from performing their duties or performing any task that would arise. Due to segregation, African American officers could not carry a gun or arrest a white citizen until the late fifties. When an African American officer stopped a white citizen, the officer had to contact a white officer, and ask the white citizen to wait until the white officer would arrive. Before the late fifties, their only weapon was a black flapjack and in one case, a dog. Each officer patrolled the North side of town, often referred to as the “Negro District”. Special attention was given to 9th street and what was called “Suburban Track”. Their salary ranged from $100.00 to $166.00 a month.

ALLEN GRANT ROGERS

The first recorded African American policeman in the state and the City of Fort Smith was Allen Grant Rogers, also known as A. G. Rogers. He joined the Police Department in December 1926 as a patrolman. An article published in the Southwest American newspaper, dated August 2, 1938, page 6, stated local police replied, “A. G. Rogers once served as a member of the New York police force and at one time he was a prominent boxer.” His height was 6'3" and weight 200 pounds with very large hands. A. G. Rogers had a trained and obedient partner, Fritz, a large German Shepherd, who always sat in the backseat of his patrol car. It has been said when Mr. Rogers would patrol the Suburban Track area, the people would scatter. He lived at 715 North “N” street with his wife, Hattie Hazel Johnson, a schoolteacher at Washington and Howard Schools, and their two sons, Al Rogers Jr. and Sam Rogers. He treated everyone the same, an outstanding policeman respected by blacks and whites. When he became ill, on September 21, 1937, Mayor Jim Jordan wrote a letter to the Negro Chamber of Commerce in Dallas, Texas, stating A. G. Rogers was a very fine officer and the city of Fort Smith would hold his position until it could be established if Mr. Rogers would be able or not to work again. Officer Rogers died on July 31, 1938, at the age of seventy-one. Captain Andy Pevehouse sent the family a letter and funds stating that this contribution could be used for a better purpose than flowers and Mr. Rogers would rather have it that way.

LELAND ANDREW SEMOND LONGLEY

In October 1945, according to Frances Wilson Longley, wife of Leland Andrew Semond Longley, he joined the Fort Smith Police Department as a car officer and remained until his death in 1960. The mayor of Fort Smith, Pink Shaw, and Mr. Peck, head of the city's water department, assisted in his hire. His parents nicknamed him “Chief” because the community wanted a black chief.

He was born in Little Rock, Arkansas on May 22, 1908 and lived at 2002 Dennison. He attended Tuskegee Institute in Tuskegee, Alabama, and Georgia State College in Savannah, Georgia, joined the armed forces on February 19, 1943 and played in the 337th Army Service Band. In 1942 he was a member of the "Rockets of Rhythm", a band with the famous Alfonso Trent and loved to play the tenor and alto saxophone. On February 11, 1943 he married Frances Wilson and to this union twelve children were born.

Officer Longley attended law enforcement training from January 10, 1950 to February 9, 1950, worked with the MP's at Fort Chaffee and became a member of St. John Catholic Church in 1945. His family has lived at 1905 North 12th street in Fort Smith since 1949. Officer Longley was 6'0" and weighed 259 pounds.

Chief was involved with the community. He loved working with the youth and began to teach music to young people. He didn't believe in sending youth to reform schools. If anyone lost their home for any reason, he would provide housing in properties he owned until they could do better.

He worked seven days a week for three years until he trained officer Alvin "Stacey" Hardwick, who was also his next-door neighbor. After officer Hardwick was trained, he rotated one month days and one month nights.

ALVIN "STACEY" HARDWICK
Officer Alvin "Stacey" Hardwick's wife, Florene Charter, said "Officer Hardwick joined the police force March 10, 1949 and remained until 1976 as a patrolman. He weighed 290 pounds, was 6'3" and the only weapon I remember him carrying was a black flapjack. We had seven children born alive. He was present at Walgreen located at 9th and Garrison Avenue when Daisy Bates came to Fort Smith during segregation and stopped at Walgreen to have a soda from the fountain counter. Officer Hardwick made sure that everything remained peaceful. He was the mentor of two other well-known officers while employed with the police department, Officer George Willis and Officer Lawrence Tidwell. He also worked as a jailer in Sebastian County for four years, and died in Fort Smith on October 12, 1976."

Officer George Washington Willis, Sr. said he joined the Fort Smith Police Department on November 16, 1960. He was born June 20, 1923, in Van Buren, Arkansas, attended Douglas Elementary in Van Buren and graduated from Lincoln High School in 1941. He was on the high school Bear football team. He joined the US Army on December 5, 1943 and is a survivor of the Battle of the Bulge.

He married Mattie Jean Young and together they had five children. His children were told they couldn't miss a day of school and he helped with his grandchildren's college education.

He trained three weeks in Camden, Arkansas to become a police officer. According to Officer Willis, at the end of Officer Hardwick's service, Officer Hardwick was able to carry a firearm and believes that he was the first African American officer to do so in Fort Smith.

Officer Willis would call people on the phone who committed a crime, and tell them to meet him at the jailhouse and they would. He would go out-of-state and transport people back to Fort Smith. He was also noted for finding and following youths home after curfew hours. He was familiar with almost everyone's parents and would call them or go to their home when there was trouble.

A newspaper article in the Southwest Times Record dated November 14, 1980 stated, George Willis Sr., a Fort Smith police officer who was critically wounded on August 16, 1976, while pursuing suspects in an armed robbery investigation, will be recognized with “George Willis Day” and a retirement ceremony Friday at the Municipal Auditorium. After twenty years of service, Willis will retire Sunday. Mayor Jack Freeze read the proclamation declaring Friday as "Willis Day. In 1980 he retired after being shot and was not expected to live, but again he beat the odds and is still living to this day. He has received numerous awards. His faithful service and outstanding achievements will always be admired and remembered."
LAWRENCE EDWARD TIDWELL, SR.
Officer Lawrence Edward Tidwell, Sr. joined the police force April 1962 and served as an administrative desk sergeant and worked in the Detective Division.

He was born August 5, 1934, in Fort Smith, Arkansas to William Lawrence Tidwell and Jettie May, graduated from Lincoln High in 1947 and attended college at Arkansas A.M.&N. in Pine Bluff, Arkansas. He was the father of three children, one grandson, and was married to Charlotte Jones when he deceased April 17, 1997. On Saturday, April 26, 1997 his funeral was held at the Fort Smith Civic Center located at 55 South 7th Street in Fort Smith.

He attended Quinn Chapel A.M.E. Church where he served as Protem of the Trustee Board, Steward, in the Lay Organization, and the Senior Choir. He was active in the Progressive Men’s Club, the Lincoln Alumni Association, Lincoln Youth Service Center, Shady Grove Masonic Lodge #28, E. O. Trent Consistory #233, and the 4-H Club. He also served in the community with Arkansas Valley Habitat for Humanity, Harbor House, Crawford-Sebastian Community Development Council, Inter-Faith Community Center, Fort Smith Optimist Club, Eastside Sertoma Club, Fulfill-A-Dream, Kiwanis Club March of Dimes, Red Cross, United Way, Fort Smith Bicentennial Commission, Martin Luther King Planning Commission, Boys Club, Girls Club, was a Golden Apple Recipient and Liberty Bell Recipient.

ALVIN BRADLEY
Officer Alvin Bradley states he joined the Fort Smith Police Department on April 26, 1969 as a patrol officer. On January 7th, 1977 he was promoted to sergeant, on August 6, 1984, was promoted to captain and on May 9, 1988 was promoted to major. His height is 6’4” and he weighs 220 pounds. When he was asked how he would like to be remembered, he said he would like to be remembered as a good man, feeling like he did a good job for the city of Fort Smith and helped to better the community for everyone.

Officer Bradley retired on June 8, 2000 after 31 years of service. He and two fellow officers, Lawrence Tidwell, Sr. and Paul Christian, were inspired in September of 1971 to open the Lincoln Youth Service Center, a place where everyone could come regardless of race or creed, on the north side of town and was at one time a part of the Lincoln High School. Officer Bradley stated, "There was a need for a youth program where the youth could be channeled in the right direction." The center was opened from the funds given by the officers and later they received funds from the City of Fort Smith. The center came at an appropriate time, due to the youth perceiving police officers as the enemy, and therefore called them "Pigs." A juvenile probation office was set up and judges worked with the officers to help better the youth. Their goal was to meet the physical and mental needs of youth, to let them know they wanted to help and have a good relationship with them.

In 1972, rap sessions were established within the local schools, and a documentary film, “Pig No More” was shown at the center. When a Little Rock, Arkansas, television station heard about the film they decided to air it on the Little Rock Educational Channel. The Center has received numerous awards and citations and is still in existence today with officer Bradley continuing to lead it to success.

Other African American policemen who later joined the Fort Smith Police Department are: Officer Paul Christian, Corporal Charles Warr, Officer Danny Brewer, Patrol Officer Wendall Sampson, and Officer Michael Lang.

Oak Cemetery Resident Implicated In President Lincoln's Assassination

By Charles Raney, Assistant Director of Community Services, City of Fort Smith

here died in Fort Smith, May 8, 1906, age 76, a man who played a prominent part in the war between the states, and who narrowly escaped being executed for the complicity in the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln, who, although having no knowledge of Wilkes Booth and his plans, was implicated in another and more daring plot against the President. This man was Captain Richard M. Smoot.

The plot in which he was implicated was the kidnapping of President Lincoln, carrying him into Virginia and holding him as hostage to force a treaty of peace that would grant the South her freedom. Captain Smoot had made all of the arrangements for the transferring of the President from his captors in the city of Washington and had the boat ready to receive him. The stopping place on the journey from Washington had all been arranged, as well as the location for hiding the prisoner.

A few days before the assassination of President Lincoln, Captain Smoot went to Washington to complete the arrangements at that end. That the plot was never attempted was due to Mrs. Surratt, one of those executed for the murder of the President. She was known to be a woman through whom all the people of southern sympathies could be reached, and spies on reaching Washington, were hidden at her home, and meetings arranged between them and their friends in Washington.

When Captain Smoot called on Mrs. Surratt, she would not give him any information, but told him to get out of the city immediately. As he knew she was well informed on the affairs of the city, he took her advice and went to Alexandria, Virginia and put up at a hotel. Early in the morning, he was awakened by cavalry galloping down the street, and asking the reason for the activity, was informed that President Lincoln had been assassinated. Captain Smoot was arrested for complicity in the assassination, but as he was very cautious in unfolding the plot to kidnap President Lincoln, nothing was discovered that would warrant holding him for trial. A lucky man thanks to tight lips and Mrs. Surratt who was not so lucky.

Captain Richard M. Smoot is buried in historical Oak Cemetery next to his wife, Mary E. Smoot, who died January 2, 1904 at age 72. Preservation of Oak Cemetery and its history is vital to Fort Smith and Sebastian County. There are nearly 15,000 stories yet to be told.

Shifting perspectives --
a new look at issues and images:
After the survivors of the government-forced march known as "The Trail of Tears" reached their appointed lands, the military garrison at Fort Smith became the federal overseer of tribal borders and peace between the resettled tribes.

Inside the park, an overlook point on the Arkansas River bank marks the end of the Trail of Tears water route. From here, the relocated tribes moved into the Indian Nations.

After the largest removal in 1839-40, the federal troops at Fort Smith were charged with guarding the tribal boundaries from white settlement, barring the sale of liquor to Indians, and apprehending white lawbreakers. The Nations were each policed with their own lawmen and tribal courts, but had no jurisdiction over whites.

Judge Parker's docket from 1875 to 1896 was packed with criminals who used the territories as an escape from U.S. lawmen, and victimized the Nations' legitimate citizens by theft, whiskey peddling, murder, and violence.

Parker's court served to protect the Indian Nations' sovereignty and safety, though many government officials who dealt with the people pushed unwillingly into Oklahoma deepened their misery. Parker's administration is recognized in the exhibit for its fair dealing.

Judge Parker's significant role as the only federal steward of justice for the Indian Nations is emphasized more strongly than his sensational image as "The Hangin' Judge." The north exhibit hall contains an accurate representation of his courtroom. His judicial procedures, including the mandatory sentencing of murderers and rapists to capital punishment, are detailed in the exhibits and courtroom replica.

2nd – Thousands remain in dark.

2nd – Eight take holiday dive. New Year’s Day swim in Frog Bayou creek is a growing tradition. Arkansas Polar Bear Society has been having New Year’s Day swim parties at the creek in Rudy since 1999.

4th – Eagle watch tours slated in January. Many of Arkansas lakes and state parks conduct special eagle watch programs and tours during winter months. Activities are scheduled at Lake Ouachita State Park, Beaver Lake, and Holla Bend National Wildlife refuge near Dardanelle.

5th – Ham operators prove vital during ice storm.

5th – Storm boosts hotel industry as area residents sought refuge from icy roads and power outages.

9th – FEMA officials visit area. Disaster recovery centers to open in local area towns.

10th – Fort Smith River Park project is expected to be completed February 15th.

13th – Mom’s Day of Prayer slated for January 20 at Evangle Temple Assembly of God. The annual event is the result of the work by Kathy Coleman, of Fort Smith. Coleman, the mother of two, envisioned the annual day of prayer that would take place at a different church each year.

15th – The national teacher shortage is making it’s way into the region as local districts report critical shortages in the areas of secondary math and science, foreign language and counselor education. Tougher certification requirements and pay concerns contribute to the problem, education official says.
Researching the Criminal Case Files for Fort Smith, Arkansas, 1860-1896

If you know of an individual who lived in Fort Smith, walked through it, breathed near it, or lived in nearby Indian Territory you should take a gander at the index to the criminal cases for Fort Smith and keep an open mind.

Step (1) You can access the index at the Southwest Region or via NARA Archival Information Location (a.k.a. NAIL) at the web address: www.nara.gov.

Step (2) Note the exact spelling of the individual’s name, the jacket number, and any name listed in the et al column.

Step (3) You may request the case papers in person, via the mail, or send a representative. If you are visiting the Southwest Region, please make a reservation to view these records. If you are mailing the request, please note that the minimum mail order is $10.00 per jacket. The easiest way to request the Fort Smith jackets is to print the jacket information from the NAIL. Checks or money orders should be made payable to the National Archives Trust Fund. If you want to pay by Mastercard, Visa, Discover, or American Express, please provide the credit card number and expiration date. The mailing address is: National Archives Southwest Region, P.O. Box 6216, Fort Worth, TX, 76115.

Want More Information?

Step (1) Try the Common Law Record Books – on microfilm publication 7RA-77 and 7RA-117. These books contain orders issued in law, civil, and criminal proceedings heard in the Fort Smith court. The volumes also contain the texts of orders admitting attorneys to practice before the court, appointing court officials, and approving financial accounts of court officials. Each volume contains an index to plaintiffs or to defendants if the United States was the plaintiff as in criminal cases.

Step (2) Try the Sentence Record Books, 1884-1909 – on microfilm publication 7RA-52. There are two parts to these books: 1) the index and 2) the record books. The index contains the name of the defendant, nature of the criminal offense, conviction or acquittal (date, length of sentence, and a reference to a volume and page number in the common law record books for the period of 1866-1884 or the sentence record books for the period of 1884-1890. The sentence record book contains information on persons sentenced by the Fort Smith court to confinement in the U.S. jail at Fort Smith; state and county penitentiaries in Arkansas, Illinois, Michigan, New York, and Ohio; reform schools in the District of Columbia and Maryland and the U.S. penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. Each entry contains the name of the defendant, indictment or case number, nature of the offense, place of confinement, length of the confinement, and amount of fine, and the sentencing date. The National Archives – Central Plains Region has records relating to prisoners at Fort Leavenworth. The Burton Collection, Detroit Public Library has records, including inmate registers and physicians reports from the Detroit penitentiary.

Step (3) Try the Transcripts of Testimony – they only cover 1889-1899. Until 1889, cases heard in the federal courts of the Western District of Arkansas could not be appealed to an appellate court. These records, arranged alphabetically, are unbound transcripts of testimony given in criminal proceedings which were appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. A list of defendants to whom the transcripts relate is given in appendix B of the preliminary inventory of the U.S. Federal Court in Arkansas (Record Group 21).

Step (4) Criminal records generally do not contain biographical information, such as age, birthdates, addresses, or information about spouses, parents, or children. The criminal case files resulted from someone being charged with a violation of a criminal law. Records within each case vary as to content. If a defendant was not located, the file may contain only a few pages.
Can't Find Them Listed in the Index?
Step (1) Try the Common Law Record Books - on microfilm publication 7RA-77 and 7RA-117. These books contain orders issued in law, civil, and criminal proceedings heard in the Fort Smith court. The volumes also contain the texts of orders admitting attorneys to practice before the court, appointing court officials, and approving financial accounts of court officials. Each volume contains an index to plaintiffs or defendants if the United States was the plaintiff as in criminal cases.

Step (2) Make sure the individuals you are researching were indeed in the western portion of Arkansas or Indian Territory.

Step (3) Try the various court records in Indian Territory (no criminal case files from the Southern District (Ardmore) have been located). The Southwest Region has records pertaining to Federal Court in Indian Territory. The Oklahoma Historical Society has records relating to those individuals who were tried in tribal courts. The U.S. District Court, Paris, Texas, also had jurisdiction over southern portions of the Indian Territory, but the Paris federal court and all of its records were destroyed in a 1916 fire.

Step (4) Try newspapers, manuscripts, etc. in other repositories. Or perhaps your individual just did not get caught.

Review copies of books are placed in the Genealogy Room of the Fort Smith Public Library as a gift from the author and the Fort Smith Historical Society.

ELECTRIC PARK, FORT SMITH, ARKANSAS SUMMER RESORT AND AMUSEMENT PARK, compiled and published by Stan Kujawa. 136 pages, spiral bound, indexed.

Contains more than 125 photographs and other illustrations. Price $26.00 plus $4.00 priority mail shipping and handling. Available at Fort Smith Museums or order directly from Camelot Consulting, P.O. Box 11013, Fort Smith, AR 72917-1013.

In this book Stan Kujawa has collected and preserved the history of Electric Park, which was the finest attraction in western Arkansas between 1905 and 1920.

From a giant roller coaster to a 2,200 seat auditorium — that’s more seats than in the remodeled Fort Smith Civic Center — to beautiful gardens, an outdoor concert band shell, restaurant, shooting gallery, penny arcade, riding stables and more, this was a place for fun, dancing, music and entertainment. Fort Smith Light & Traction Company, which built, owned and operated the park, kept a full time orchestra and sponsored its own baseball team, The Trolley Dodgers. The best vaudeville acts in the country played Electric Park, and the latest silent movies were shown there first. League Park, adjacent to Electric Park, in addition to being a baseball field, was a favorite take-off and landing field for early aviators and barnstorming aerial acrobats. The first “aeroplane” flight in western Arkansas took place there May 21, 1910.

Kujawa says history doesn’t preserve itself, and he spent months researching Electric Park, finding old photographs and establishing a time line of events that took place there. His sources included files of the Fort Smith newspapers, the University of Arkansas files at Fayetteville, the Journal of the Fort Smith Historical Society, rare picture postcard collections and many other records of this city’s past.

Kujawa is also in the process of producing a second historical volume. This one will be dedicated to Garrison Avenue, will contain more than 300 photographs and more than 8,000 listings of businesses along the street, who owned and operated those businesses, where they were located, what goods and services they provided, etc. Expected publication date will be around the end of 2001.

This is an exact reprint of this out of print book which is a valuable illustrated history of Fort Smith and Sebastian County industry, businesses, residents, homes, etc. in 1887. The collection of pictures of buildings and people of this area are not available anywhere else. The few copies of the original printing that have survived are too fragile to be handled for research. This reprint on acid free glossy paper preserves this rare publication and makes it available to the public again.

BLACK SLAVES AND EARLY FREEDMEN OF HEMPSTEAD COUNTY, ARKANSAS, 1819-1850. 8 1/2 x 11, perfect bound, 151 pages, indexed, price $20.00 plus $3.50 shipping and handling, order from Linda McDowell, 14617 Sara Drive, Little Rock, AR 72206.

Black Slaves and Early Freedmen of Hempstead County, Arkansas: 1829-1850 is a compilation of slave transactions abstracted and transcribed from Hempstead County deed records. Hempstead County was established in 1818 and is one of the oldest counties in Arkansas. It once supported a fairly large slave population which included four sets of the author’s great-great grandparents. The compilation consists of ten (10) county deed books with over 1300 names of slaves and free people of color.

This book will prove to be a great resource for genealogists tracing their family roots in this southwest part of the state. It also contains a variety of transactions that originated in other southern counties and states recorded in Hempstead for various reasons.

Linda McDowell is the Genealogy coordinator for the Butler Center for Arkansas Studies, Central Arkansas Library in Little Rock, Arkansas; and a charter member and officer of the Afro-American Historical and Genealogical Society, Arkansas Chapter.

LET’S GO FISHING!

In selecting fish, choose only those in which the eye is full and prominent, the flesh thick and firm, the scales bright and fins stiff. They should be thoroughly cleaned before cooking.

The usual modes of cooking fish are boiled, baked, fried and occasionally stewed. Steaming fish is much superior to boiling, but the ordinary conveniences in private houses do not admit of the possibility of enjoying this delicate way of cooking it. Large fish are generally boiled, medium sized ones baked or broiled, the smaller kinds fried or broiled. Very large fish, such as cod, halibut, etc., are cut into steaks or slices for frying or broiling.

The heads of some fish, as the cod, halibut, etc., are considered tidbits by many. Small fish, or pan fish, as they are usually called, are served without the heads, with the exception of brook-trout and smelts; these are usually cooked whole with the heads on. Bake fish slowly, basting often with butter and water. Salmon is considered the most nutritious of all fish. When boiling fish, by adding a little vinegar and salt to the water, it seasons and prevents the nutriment from being drawn out, the vinegar acting on the water hardens the water.

Fill the fish with a nicely prepared stuffing of rolled cracker or stale bread crumbs, seasoned with butter, pepper and salt, sage and any other aromatic herbs fancied; sew up, wrap in a well-floured cloth, tie closely with twine, and boil or steam. The garnishes for boiled fish, turbot, fried smelts or other boiled fish are parsley, sage, sliced beets, lemon or sliced boiled egg.

He was on hand yesterday. He was on South Sixth street and he saw the piles of mud and puddles of water and then the humor in him bubbled over. He got a stick and stuck it in the middle of one of the street pools. Then he put on the stake a sign on which there was a grotesqually made index finger pointing towards the mayor's office, the sign read:

Some compassionate individual removed the reminder of somebody's fault, but not before it had tickled the risibilities of many people.

He appears to be a stranger in this section, at least he is not known to the police and for that reason he is presumed to be a stranger. Last evening he was in Speaker's saloon on the corner of the avenue and First street, when a gentleman stepped to the bar and tossed off 4 fingers of jug juice and tendered a five dollar bill in payment. The barkeeper did not have that amount of change in his clothes and he handed Hicks the bill to get changed. Hicks went to John Bender's saloon and got the change after he had blown 70 cents for booze. Then he skipped out with the rest but was arrested some hours later. In the police court this morning he offered to make restitution but was remanded to jail in order that the barkeeper might be summoned to appear against him.

A SPONGE SANDWICH
Sponge sandwich or roll is made as follows, and if baked in a very hot oven it will be delightfully light.
Take a teacup of flour, the same quantity of castor sugar, a pinch of salt and a teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix these well in a basin. Break an egg into a teacup and if satisfied that it is fresh, add it to the flour and other ingredients. Do the same with another egg and not beating it until added to the flour. Beat all for five minutes, spread on flat tins to the thickness of half an inch and bake.

GOT PLENTY OF QUAIL
Mayor Garrett and Attorney Martin returned yesterday from the vicinity of Cameron, I.T., where they were on a hunting trip. They bagged eighty-five quail bringing the largest bag of game seen here for many a moon.

"We shot at nothing but quail", said the mayor this morning. "Had we wanted rabbits we could have gotten plenty of them. I almost stepped on one. It was right under my feet. I kicked at it, but of course missed it."

Dr. Johnson Returns From Winslow to the jail.
His five days parole terminated and he tried to get it renewed but without avail.

Dr. J. H. Johnson, of Winslow, who pleaded guilty to selling liquor without a government license, was sentenced to thirty days and $100 fine, and subsequently permitted to go home to his family on a five day parole for the purpose of fixing up his affairs, returned this morning and presented himself to the acting warden of the jail, saying that he would return before his parole limit was reached and went to see his attorney.

An effort was made to have further serving of sentence suspended and considerable influence was brought to bear upon the district attorney who declined to interfere. Dr. Jackson went to see Judge Rogers and had quite a conversation with the court who, however, could see no reason for further clemency, so Dr. Johnson went back to jail and took his place among the other prisoners, there to remain until the expiration of his term of service.

A systematic effort is being made to increase the subscriptions of the business men around town, to the support of the Commercial League. The movement is one that should be heartily supported and liberally supported. It would be an everlasting shame and disgrace for Fort Smith to allow the present organization to die for want of support. Help the cause along with your dollars. As a motive power for ships, wind is almost entirely out-of-date. It is likewise out-of-date as a method of making cities move along. Therefore, something more substantial than wind is needed in the present case.

WILL ASK FOR DIRT

This evening at the meeting of the council, a petition will be presented for W. J. Echols asking that A and B streets from thirteenth to sixteenth streets and also fourteenth and fifteenth streets between A and B streets to be graded by the city and that the surplus dirt be given to him to fill in the low places on his property.

City Engineer Bayley made a calculation today as to the amount of surplus there would be and finds that there would not be over 50 square yards. The petition of Mr. Echols will therefore be submitted to the committee on public improvements and find its death there.

Nominee Foreman Henry, of the Frisco shops, is wearing his political honors with becoming dignity. He was asked yesterday what course he intended to pursue when he got into Council and he said “I really don’t know anything about what is to be done. I know that there are some electric lights on the outskirts of the city where they do good only to the few, and I know that down this way where hundreds of men are compelled to travel at all hours of the night there are no lights. I know that we have few, if any, street crossings which will enable a person to cross our streets in wet weather with any degree of foot dryness, and I know that sewer connections are badly needed, but whether I will be able to effect any reform in this direction remains to be seen. I am going to do the very best for the ward that I can, and further than that I cannot say. I am not in a position just now to do anything.

Observations by Truthful James

Speaking of politics, I am bitterly opposed to them. I would rather see a child of mine turn out to be a policeman or even a newspaper man than a politician. When a man once becomes addicted to the office seeking habit, there is no keeley cure for him. There have been more prominent young men planted in premature graves, more bright hopes blasted, more brilliant prospects shattered by overwhelming desire of men to serve their county than from all other causes combined.

March 13, 1900

Beginning to Arrive – Walter Evans, who is presumably a candidate for city engineer, arrived in the city yesterday and McCarty is expected to enter the field in time to see how he stands with the councilmen. In the meantime, City Engineer Bayley is on the anxious list.

Judge Rowe has issued an order to the effect that all prisoners in the county jail on charges of misdemeanors shall be turned over to the city. This will lessen the expenses of the county to quite an extent but correspondingly increase those of the city and while the action seems unjust, it is doubtless within the limits of the law.

Saturday morning the old building on the Reserve belonging to the Tenney-Anderson Lumber Company caught fire and burned to the ground notwithstanding the efforts of the fire department to prevent its destruction. Being an entirely frame building and very old, it burned rapidly. It was occupied at the time by one or two families and it is supposed a spark from one of their stoves started the flames. The building was owned by Mrs. Sue Bonneville, loss $1250. No insurance.

The Booneville Democrat says a little son of Mr. Glover was badly burned by an explosion of powder. His clothing caught fire from the explosion, and but for the prompt action of Mr. Ed Richardson he would have burned to death.

Last Friday morning Esq. Dan Baker, at the county clerk's office, tied the matrimonial knot for Samuel Wheat and Mrs. Myrtle Wheat. The similarity of names arises from the fact that the bride was the widow of the bridegroom's brother.

The Greenwood Democrat says Will Dansdon's barn burned during the early part of last week. Everything in the barn except the horses was burned. Two hundred bushels of corn was lost. The fire is supposed to have been the result of incendiary work.

A Monday night meeting of the council on ordinance passed placing a tax of twenty-five cents each upon telegraph, electric light, telephone and street car poles. This is a big reduction from the rate fixed by the original ordinance, and will probably be acceptable to all concerned.

Last Friday evening the occupants of the Hotel Main were considerably rattled by an alarm of fire. It was about suppertime, and the alarm created quite a stampede. This was not exactly enough, so farther down the street he jumped Flem Little. The result of his encounter with Flem was a blow that sent him hurridly through one of Uptmoor’s windows. Monday he appeared before Hizzoner Freer with woebegone countenance and highly colord optics and begged the court’s mercy. He received a fine of $7.50, which he paid and went home.

The Argus says this wedding took place in Jarvis Grocery Store. The witnesses being Messrs. Jarvis and Jones.

Friday afternoon fire broke out in the residence of Mr. Dave May at 805 North 8th Street. An alarm was quickly turned in but owing to a misunderstanding the department rushed to Mr. Mayo’s former residence in Barnes and Street addition. This delayed the arrival of hose carts at the real seat of danger for some time. Mr. Mayo’s loss is about $3,000. Insurance about $2,000.

Mrs. W. N. Ayers Dead. She passed away at her home Saturday Night. Fort Smith lost one of its noblest specimen of womanhood in the passing of Mrs. W. N. Ayers, the wife of W. N. Ayers, of the Ketchem Iron Works, and mother of Walter, John and Will Ayers of the city.

Mrs. Ayers was 71 years of age and succumbed to pneumonia. She was a consistent and valued member of the Baptist Church and loved by all who knew her. Many in the city have felt the weight of her kindly hands.

The deceased leaves a husband, W. N. Ayers, four sons and two daughters.

The funeral service will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2:0’clock from the residence of the deceased at 820 North Twelfth Street. The Rev. Pitman of the Baptist church will officiate and the interment will be in the city cemetery.

JOE P. MATTHEWS INDICTED

Quite a sensation was created in this city Tuesday the 12th by the arrest of Mr. Joe P. Matthews upon indictment returned by the grand jury charging him with grand larceny, obtaining money under false pretense and forgery. The prosecution grew out of matters connected with Mr. Matthews’ recent failure in business.

Mr. Matthews promptly gave all the bail required and appears to give himself very little trouble about the outcome. He is confident of acquittal and is anxious that the case be tried at as early a day as possible.

Spark’s Chill Tonic

While there are many kinds of Chill Tonic on the market – good, bad, and indifferent – there is one that keeps its hold on popular favor, and its increased use is a certain indication that it is a preparation that does all that is called for. Spark’s Tasteless Chill and Fever Tonic now has a larger sale than ever before and the demand is constantly increasing. This Chill Tonic is a pure vegetable compound and it is indisputably the most effective treatment of ague and suffering from nervous derangement of any Chill Tonic on the market. Ask for Spark’s Tasteless Chill and Fever Tonic and take no other. Price 50 cents.

The doors of the great Paris Exposition were thrown open last Friday. The United States stands second to France in the number of Exhibits.

Both the Democratic and the Republican Parties are skirmishing around for candidates for Vice President.

At El Paso, Texas, Col. W. J. Bryan, when asked for his views regarding the Constitutional Amendment that provides for the election of Senators by popular vote said: “I am in favor of it. During both my terms in Congress I introduced resolutions in favor of it. If the people are intelligent enough to elect governors and congress, they are intelligent enough to elect senators. The senators not only are not selected by the people, but the senatorial contests in the legislature interfered with the real duties of the legislature at great expense to the people, especially if the contests are prolonged. Last year the legislatures of four states were dead-locked the entire session.”

Ex-Governor Fishback and Mr. H. B. Salls left Sunday night for Galveston, Texas, to attend the Trans-Mississippi Convention. They will make a red-hot delegation.

50 acres in good condition, good 3-room house, good barns, good well water, 6 acres set in strawberries, locally known as the John Nolen Farm. Also good house in town of Lavaca. $900 cash will buy farm and property in town.
